REPUBLICAN CAM- PAIGN CONTRIBU- TIONS $1,308,820

ACCORDING TO TESTIMONY OF
TREASURER—NO CONTRIBU-
TIONS OVER $2,500

L. C. MARTIN

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Chicago, Aug. 31.—The republican party treasury has gathered a total of $1,308,820.55 in cash and pledges since the convention in June. Fred Upham, treasurer of the republican national committee testified before the senate campaign fund investigating committee.

Upham said $339,241.78 of this was or will be used as a state fund and not for the work of the national committee. Cash collections from June 13 amount to $618,413.54. Upham said, and uncollected pledges equal $291,565.54. Of the last item Upham said $200,000 will be for the use of the national committee and the remainder for state committees.

Upham submitted to the committee a bound volume two inches thick containing names of twelve thousand contributors since June. Of these eight have given more than $1,000, but none more than $2,500. Among the unpaid pledges there were two for $5,000, he said.

He also presented a detailed statement on party finances, which was in addition to figures given, that the national committee borrowed $350,000. All these loans Upham said were made in the usual manner. "Not a penny represents any underwriting of this campaign."

The national committee, Upham said, has instructed him to lend up to $200,000 to the republican senatorial campaign committee, and $500,000 to the congressional committee if they need it. These loans must be repaid, he said.

"Where will you get the money to repay these loans?" asked Senator Reed.

"From republicans, I guess," said Upham.

"That means then that we must add $700,000 to the campaign fund total given us by Mr. Hays," said Reed.

Upham explained he did not expect to lend either of the committees the total sums allotted them. Also he said $100,000 of the congressional committee fund is not to be loaned until after election. "It is for next year's congressional election," he said.

"I think both the committees ought to have a small cash balance left," Upham declared.

"But they may spend all of it and more," insisted Reed, "so we have got to add to the budget of $2,079,000 given us yesterday by Mr. Hays $700,000 you have told us about. That makes a total of $3,779,000."

Upham disputed this declaring $700,000 was no part of the national committee budget.

Reed and Upham had a long dispute over the work of the "joint agreement" with the states whereby the national committee supervises the raising of funds both for state and national committee men.

"Reed asked what was to prevent the states after raising the quota assigned to them, from collecting indefinitely for their own purposes."

"Why when we get through there is nothing left to collect," said Upham, "and it is going to take us right up to election day to collect our budget."

"I will undertake to say that there is more money raised and spent in Chicago in any election than the national committee even knows about and the same is true not only in Chicago, but in every state in the union," declared Upham. "When state and county officials are running for election they are going to raise the money and you cannot stop it."

The committee asked about loans made by the national committee to states that include $25,000 to Maine, $7,000 to North Carolina and $5,000 to Maryland.

Upham said he hoped these loans would be repaid, but that no guarantee for repayment or no notes were given.

Upham said $539,000 has been spent to date for speakers and speakers bureaus but did not know whether any campaign speakers received any salaries.

by the republican national committee for the 1920 campaign, totals $4,887,500, Fred W. Upham, treasurer, disclosed here today.

This sum, Upham declared, represents every penny the republicans had at any time planned to collect and really represented the time it was arrived at about twice what the party leaders expect to raise.

The quotas were fixed early in 1919, he said, while the $3,078,000 budget under which the party is operating, was not adopted until July, 1920.

Thread in Manchuria.

Almost all of the $2,000,000 worth of cotton thread imported annually into Manchuria comes from Japan, partly because Japanese manufacturers have the advantage over possible competitors of government encouragement and support, and partly because there has been little competition from those sufficiently interested in this market to study its requirements as have the Japanese, says the New York Times.

Goods were placed with merchants on consignment until they became known, were extensively advertised and are now sold on liberal credit basis, so that American manufacturers entering the market will not only have to compete on a quality basis, but should adopt similar methods of pushing their goods.

WET AND DRY CANDIDATES AT OHIO STATE FAIR

HERBERT WALKER

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 31.—Two presidential candidates, Governor James Cox, democrat, and Rev. Aaron S. Watkins, prohibitionist, were to be the "headliners" at the Ohio state fair today.

They were scheduled to speak from the same platform. Today is "Presidential Day" at the fair and previous plans were to make the political speech a joint debate between Senator Harding and Cox, but the senator declined the invitation.

Cox said he expected to devote most of his speech to agriculture and the league of nations.

COX SAYS THAT HAYS STATEMENTS ARE NOT TRUE

HERBERT WALKER

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 31.—Governor James M. Cox, in a statement today, characterized as "absolutely untrue," the statement of Will Hays before the senate campaign expenditures investigating committee in Chicago yesterday, that the fixed policy of the republicans is to limit campaign contributions to $1,000.

To substantiate his statement the governor again quoted from an official republican campaign document which said:

"The time has arrived when some prospect should ask for subscriptions ranging from $5,000 upward."

Cox claimed that these "prospects" referred to in the document was the "cream list," and that the republican national organization urged that these contributions be kept secret.

INQUEST HELD OVER REMAINS OF HOWARD RHODES

CHICAGO MAN SHOT WHILE AUTO
RIDING WITH MARRIED WOMAN

(By United Press)

Chicago, Aug. 31.—A "phantom" bandit stalked to the inquest over the remains of Howard B. Rhodes, shot to death here late yesterday.

Rhodes was killed while auto riding with Mrs. Gladys Jacobson. The woman drove the car to the hospital with Rhodes' body beside her. She was to be the main witness at the inquest today and her appearance was assured by her former husband in whose custody she was released late yesterday.

Mrs. Jacobson said the motor had been stalled in "Lover's Lane" near here, but was about to start again when a bandit appeared in the roadside brush. Rhodes hastily fired an automatic and the robber dashed to the rear of the car and fired from there. The bullet passed through Rhodes neck. The bandit disappeared and she hurried to the city.

Police wonder over some of the sections of the woman's story and are puzzled over the fact that the bullet which killed Rhodes was fired at a range downward and that his revolver was found in the road.

BE A HELPFUL BYSTANDER

By CAPTAIN G. R. G. FISHER

Fractures
 The bones which break most frequently are the lower jaw, collar bone, ribs and those of upper or lower limbs. Great care must be taken in handling fractures, as it is quite easy to turn a "simple" fracture into a "compound" fracture, and utmost tenderness must be exercised in removing clothing or shoes, where that is necessary.

Jaw—Always examine teeth where the pain is. If these are irregular or gum is bleeding, the evidence of the fracture is clear, so place the lower teeth against upper, get someone to hold in place, and take a narrow scarf, catch under jaw and carry one end over top of head, cross at temple above ear, and carry one end around forehead and other around nape of neck and tie ends on opposite temple.

Collar Bone—Always run finger over both collar bones, and if broken the comparison will usually reveal a lump on the injured side. Make a large pad of some article, a scarf, cap or paper, place under armpit on injured side, gently press arm into side, and carry forearm over chest upwards inclined. Make a wide scarf with triangular bandage, carry over fore arm and hand, bring round over arm at side and tie tight behind.

Ribs—A fracture of these is most distressing, and usually causes one to faint, the pain being due to the motion of lungs in breathing, and consequently the injured person tries not to breathe. The distress is shown plainly. Take a towel, reaching from the armpit to waist, and long enough to encircle body; lay injured on back and two persons with strong hands pull tight until the patient can take a little breath (secure with safety pins or stitch with thread).

Arm—Carefully place against side with forearm across chest, and fasten with wide triangular scarf the width of limb, on opposite side.

Forearm—Fold several newspapers the length of limb and secure same thereby with strips of tape or string tied around, and place in large arm sling.

Fingers, Hand or Wrist as above.

Leg—Use splints on each side of limb reaching from middle of thigh to heel; boards or folded blanket will do.

Kneecap—Splint on back of leg from middle of thigh and lower part of leg and fasten above and below knee.

Thigh—Splint must reach from armpit to ankle, using small pole, four-inch board or gun with butt in armpit, waist, high in thigh, over knee, and at ankle and tie both legs together. If a woman, fold skirts smoothly and tie all bandages below waist around dress over both limbs.

Ankle or Foot—Make an ell splint by nailing a short board, size of foot, to one long enough to reach middle of leg, and secure.

NEW PARK OPENS WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 1

Improvements and Alterations Made
Make Theatre Flash a Cordial Welcome

OPENING TO BE A GREAT EVENT

All Brainerd Glad Over Resumption of Vaudeville and Pictures
In Brainerd

The New Park Theatre will open to the public on Wednesday, September 1. Dark since last June when the wind storm wrought such wreckage, the resumption of the theatre is hailed with joy by the public and a record attendance is anticipated.

The lobby of the theatre has been greatly improved, repainted and tiling used on side walls of the entrance. New scenery and equipment has been added.

The bill for Wednesday is an ambitious one. It includes four acts of vaudeville, Ruth and Kitty Clark, Knight and Day, Ray and Blanch McKay, the Hordes duo. The pictures feature Sennett's latest comedy "Married Life". Shows commence at 7 and at 9 o'clock.

Of the vaudeville, Ruth and Kitty Clark are dainty delineators of snappy songs and catchy melodies; Knight and Day appear in "A Violin Lesson"; Ray and Blanch McKay in clean, classy comedy with songs and dances; the Hordes duo are Russian instrumentalists, dancers and singers.

Sennett's "Married Life" is not a two-reel comedy, but a full feature comedy. It is not a war picture.

The show offers a bill of fun and entertainment, two hours of solid enjoyment with no waits. Admission to the lower floor is 50c and tax; to the balcony 30c and tax.

On Friday and Saturday the New Park will show the film "Lahoma" based on the famous novel by John Breckenridge Ellis, a drama of the early days of Oklahoma.

Came Home to Die

"Three years ago I came home thinking 2 or 3 weeks would be my limit to live. I had suffered for 15 years from colic attacks and severe liver and stomach trouble. I happened to see an advertisement of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy and purchased a bottle at the drug store and after taking the first dose I felt better than I had for 15 years. I am now in the best of health—thanks to Mayr's Wonderful Remedy." It removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract, and allay the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded at Johnson's Pharmacy and druggists everywhere.

PLEASANTLY SURPRISED

About 40 Friends Surprise Miss Ina Anderson Monday Evening, August 30th

On Monday evening about 40 friends of Miss Ina Anderson gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Anderson and pleasantly surprised her.

Miss Anderson leaves Wednesday by car with her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. O. M. Anderson, for an extended visit with them at their home in Nashville, Georgia.

Miss Anderson was presented with several beautiful and useful gifts and a purse as a remembrance. Rev. P. G. Fallquist of the Swedish Bethany church made the presentation speech, saying she will be greatly missed in the different branches of the church work, in which, he said, she was one of the most faithful workers.

The evening was pleasantly spent in games, music and recitations. Refreshments were served by the many friends after which the gathering left for their homes, expressing the hope that Miss Anderson will enjoy her trip and soon return to Brainerd.

COX, HARDING AND OHIO.

Cox was chosen because he comes from the same state as Harding, and Roosevelt was named as his running mate because he bears the name of a distinguished American. It was hoped that Cox could carry Ohio for the democratic ticket and Roosevelt swing New York. There is no likelihood, however, that the voters of New York will be misled by the use of the name of the greatest American of recent years, nor is there anything to justify the hope that Cox may be able to carry Ohio against Harding.

Study of election returns show Harding to be stronger in Ohio than is Cox. And, moreover, under ordinary circumstances, Ohio is a pretty dependable republican state. Beginning with the election which placed Abraham Lincoln in the White House and recorded the first victory for the republican party, there have been fifteen national elections, and Ohio has gone republican in thirteen of these. The only occasions on which Ohio went democratic were in 1912 when the republican party was divided, and in 1916, when the country was deceived by the "kept-us-out-of-war" propaganda. In 1912, although the democrats led, the combined vote of the republicans and the progressives exceeded that of the democrats, showing that the defeat of the republicans was due to division and not to preference for democratic policies. Out of 22 members of congress from Ohio, 14 are republicans.

In 1912, when Cox was first elected governor, there was a progressive candidate in the field, Cox received 50,000 less votes than the republican and progressive candidates combined. In 1914, although there was still a progressive candidate for the governorship, Willis defeated Cox by 31,000. If he had received the progressive vote also, his majority would have been more than 90,000. In 1916 Cox was carried through by the Wilson deception and in 1918 he won through a local issue which turned to the democratic column a county normally republican. His majority in 1918 was only 12,000.

Contrasted with this record, the Harding vote makes an exceedingly good showing. Harding was elected senator in 1914, with a progressive candidate in the field to divide his vote. Nevertheless, Harding was elected by a plurality of more than 100,000 at the same time that Cox was defeated by 29,000 in his race for the governorship. Harding received a total of 526,115 votes for the senatorship. The vote for Cox in the same year was 425,367, or about 33,000 less than the Harding vote. That was the highest vote Cox ever received, his vote in 1918 being only 486,000 or 46,000 less than the Harding vote in 1914.

Cox has never won election that could be called a personal victory. Harding won the senatorship even with the disadvantage of a divided party. Cox has been known as a cunning politician who could take advantage of special conditions. Harding has been a statesman who brought strength to his party ticket and received more than his normal party vote. When Cox won by the narrow margin of 5,193 in 1916, he polled nearly 40,000 fewer votes than did Wilson, who dragged Cox through. When Cox won by a little more than 5,000, Pomeroy carried the senatorship by 35,000 and Wilson carried Ohio by nearly 90,000.

It is manifest from the figures, that the effort to play up Cox as a great vote-getter is pure fake. Cox has been clever at getting in at the right time to profit politically by favorable circumstances not of his creation.

JUSTICE THE BEST REMEDY

A writer on the Russian menace points out that the danger to European nations and to America is not from attack by the Russian Reds themselves, but from the danger which lies within our own countries, the extent to which our people can be inflamed and hoodwinked by Bolshevik doctrines.

This is a clear view of the case. The Red armies driving westward are limited in numbers, short of food and war supplies. They will never overrun the world of themselves. They can do comparatively little harm so long as the nations against which they fling themselves remain poised, secure, devoted to the highest principles of justice and freedom. If the common man is not to embrace Bolshevik doctrines, he must be sure he can obtain something better, must know that there is something more worth while and that it is his as well as another's.

We have here in America great forces which can be set ablaze with the light of Bolshevism. The fire need never be kindled if Americans will devote themselves with fairness and enthusiasm to a better understanding of our alien population, if they proceed vigorously and wisely with plans of Americanization and education, and above all, if they are just in their dealings with the restless and the disturber and just in their relations with one another. Justice alone makes for final safety and confidence, whether it be between men or factions or nations.

NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING PAYS

(Advertising Age)

"Ninety-five per cent of all sales in the United States, retail or wholesale, result from newspaper advertising," said a speaker recently before the St. Louis Advertising club and Members' Conference of the Chamber of Commerce, St. Louis.

"The average person does not realize that advertising has largely displaced the salesman. The business man, however, knows it well. He did not realize it, however, until a few years ago.

"Big business firms, which formerly sent out salesmen, now buy whole pages in newspapers. They are paying closer attention to advertising and are checking up in the same manner they used to check up the salesman. They want to know whether the advertising that is going out is honest.

"Generally it costs a merchant only one-fourth of a cent per home to carry a full page of advertising. It has been said advertising increases the cost of goods. There is no other way the merchant could sell them at so low a rate. Through advertising merchants are increasing their business and are able to liquidate their stocks more quickly."

THE LOYAL MANY

The draft evasions were scandalous enough, when measured by a standard of perfection. All human measurements, however, must be comparative. When so considered, the 173,911 men listed by the war department as having "willfully failed" their country become a cause of pride—not in them, but in the vast majority for whom they furnish the contrast.

In the Civil War, as the department report reminds the public, evasions were far more numerous and flagrant. In the present case, the number of slackers, while great in itself, was but a minute part of the total registration—only about two-thirds of 1 per cent.

Never in American history has that record been equalled. It may be questioned whether it is equalled by any other belligerent in the World War.

ers. Some of these men on being questioned as to why they go to the classes say quite frankly that they are glad to get the bed-rock, elementary information offered.

The situation is far more promising than amusing. It shows that women are seeking information both at home and abroad, and that men are fitting themselves to give it, and that the awakened interest of the women has aroused many thinking men to the fact that their own concrete knowledge of the fundamentals of citizenship and government is vague and in need of bringing up.

With men and women both seeking a better education in the duties of citizenship and the functions of those elected to office, the prospect is bright for a future wherein all voters will use the ballot more intelligently, will practice a better citizenship themselves and demand for public office men of higher ability and integrity.

Secretary Colby said in his ratification address: "As Admiral Dewey said to the commander at the battle of Manila Bay, 'You may fire when ready, Gridley,' so I say to the women of America, 'You may fire when you're ready.'"

WHITNEY MAKES 4 PROPOSITIONS

Head of Brainerd Gas & Electric Company Seems Anxious to Resume Relations in Brainerd

WANTS TO SELL CITY THE MAINS

New Idea is to Have City Buy its Gas Wholesale Just As it Buys Its Electricity

A. G. Whitney, president of the Brainerd Gas & Electric Co., who to the meeting of gas consumers announced he would quit Brainerd, who then proposed to council municipal ownership or large increases in costs of gas and purchase of stock by citizens and a sliding scale, etc., and was offered an adequate rate by the council and failing to accept same was given 30 days to make gas or quit, has now come forward with a letter which broaches some new ideas on the part of Mr. Whitney.

He brings up the purchase by the city of the street mains, street and house connections, governors and meters, etc. The street mains are firmly attached to city streets and according to many authorities revert to the city.

Mr. Whitney may dismantle his plant without interference, but the city, it is conceded by many can quickly halt him should he attempt without authority to tear up streets or fish out his mains.

The following is the first letter in which Mr. Whitney takes cognizance of the fact that other people besides himself have been inconvenienced by the closing of the plant.

His letter follows in full:
August 28th, 1920
Mr. Severn Swanson,
City Clerk,
Brainerd, Minn.

Dear Sir:
It has been suggested to us that your city might desire to purchase all of the street mains, street and house connections, including governors and meters and make a contract with us to sell them gas on a wholesale basis, the deal to be handled along some such lines as the city is now handling its electrical business.

While this is a matter that I have never heard of as being done, yet, I see no reason but what it is a feasible one to work out. You have your Water and Light Board and it is better that all three utilities be handled under one head than for it to be divided up.

If you are desirous of making that kind of a deal, we will enter into an agreement with you to put the street mains and other properties appraised into an appraisal and at the same time make you a wholesale proposition for your gas, you taking it from our holder and tanks located at the plant.

As a second proposition, we will sell the entire plant to your city.

As a third proposition, if local capital wishes to take it over, we will sell it to them to reorganize the company, or, as a fourth proposition, you have our proposition as to the terms upon which we are willing to re-open the plant.

We are not unmindful of the inconvenience that the closing of this plant is causing the Brainerd people and deeply regret the closing of the plant, but inasmuch as it is closed, it would be the height of folly to open it again unless all plans were worked out mutually satisfactory to all parties in interest.

The company cannot operate another year unless it can get a reasonable return on its investment and while this temporary price asked may seem high, it is lower than one can really expect under the present conditions and in accepting the temporary price offered, we could only accept it with the understanding that the rates be adjusted, raised and lowered, in accordance with the price of the commodities required for the making of the gas, including labor.

You know that the price of coal has gone up 50c within the last week; coke went up $1.40 per ton August 10th and the freight rates went up the 26th. All of these matters will have to be taken care of and borne by the consumers and provided for in the rates.

I would suggest that if anything is done, it be done immediately. If we have to dismantle the plant, we wish to do it at once and if the plant is ever started again, the consumers should have the benefit of it now.

Very truly yours,
A. G. WHITNEY,
President.

CHILD DESERTION

Crosby Man Taken In Michigan Has Hearing in Brainerd Municipal Court

George Kuskey of Crosby, charged with desertion of a child 4 years of age, was taken in custody in Calumet, Michigan, by Sheriff Claus A. Theorin and brought to Brainerd for a hearing.

An Elcar driven at high rate of speed near midnight last night is reported to have torn off the east railing of the small bridge at the south end of the 13th street cement road.

"WHAT MAKES THE CLOCK GO"

Novel Clock Installed by the Brainerd State Bank in its Seventh St. Window

EXPLANATION OF MOVEMENT

No Clockwork, No Electricity, No Magnets, No Air Control to Make It Keep Time

"What makes it go?"

That's the first question one thinks of when viewing the new clock in the window of the Brainerd State bank. It has a glass face, substantial hands, and that's about all. In spite of entire absence of clock works, of electric connections, or magnets or air control, the clock moves and keeps accurate time.

The answer of what makes the clock go was given out in this statement by Art Koop, an assistant cashier of the Brainerd State Bank. The explanation is very simple and reads like this:

The revolution of the earth on its axis every twenty-four hours possesses both a rotary and centrifugal force. The rotary force is neutralized by the magnetic attraction which causes articles to fall instead of fly out into space when dropped.

By supplanting this neutralization of the rotary motion of the earth in its daily revolution by a counter-balancing influence secured by means of a bisecting spheroid to which a magnetic compass is attached and by astronomically calculating the proper reduction in size so that the circumference of the clock's dial bears the same relationship to its axis as the circumference of the earth bears to the axis of the earth and also utilizing the attraction of the moon to the earth, which is found to be felt upon the hour hand of the clock when this neutralization is removed by the above mentioned scientific discovery, then the hands are allowed to rotate in accord with the revolution of the earth, the same as the earth rotates on its axis, except that the calculation is such that the hands of the clock makes two revolution to the earth's one.

NEW DIRECTORY MAKES APPEARANCE

Eleventh Volume of Brainerd City Directory Compiled and Published by John H. Ley

SHOWS A LARGE INCREASE

Great Care Has Been Exercised in Production, Double Check System Was Employed

The new Brainerd city directory is being distributed among subscribers.

This is the eleventh volume compiled and published by John H. Ley of St. Cloud, the veteran directory man, and is fully up to the high standard set by him in previous editions.

In his introductory Mr. Ley says: "This, the eleventh volume of the Brainerd city directory is presented to its subscribers with the assurance that the usual care has been taken in the preparation of the work. While the present restless conditions have made the compilation of this directory far more difficult yet the book will show few errors and omissions as all information was taken by the double check system."

"As this is the year in which the government census was taken the usual estimated population will not be announced in this issue. The census figures are official therefore it would not be advisable to give the results of the directory count as it would conflict with the government enumeration."

Examining directories of previous years, one finds this gain recorded in names enumerated of person over 15 years of age:

January 1913—3889.
October 1914—4050. Gain 161.
Sept. 1916—4187. Gain 137.
Oct. 1918—4228. Gain 41.
Sept. 1920—4434. Gain 206.

Using the established directory ratio of 2-1/2 per name to compute population would give Brainerd 11,085 and that sure many people think is more nearly Brainerd's population with not a vacant house in town than the 1920 government census of 9591 where one ward was reported losing in population over census figures of ten years ago.

The advertising patronage was good and support by Brainerd merchants and others excellent. Mr. Ley furnishes directories for Brainerd, St. Cloud, Bemidji, Thief River Falls, Crookston, Willmar, Fergus Falls, Alexandria and Wahpeton and his work is at all times reliable and his books well printed and bound, thus being able to stand the constant usage to which they are subjected.

N. D. Shippers Meet.

Fargo, Aug. 31.—The car shortage question is to be discussed by the North Dakota Shippers' association here today. Great improvement in car service has been secured through the activities of the northwest committee at Washington comprising Frank Mitholland, state railroad commissioner and J. J. Murphy and O. P. B. Jacobson, commissioners from South Dakota and Minnesota, respectively.

"We have been assured that the car supply will be 100 per cent by time crop movement begins; we hope to make it 115 per cent," said Commissioner Mitholland.

MANY FLY IN HYDROPLANE

John Cochran Up in the Ethereal Blue. Says the View of Lakes and Hills is Superb

MANY PASSENGERS CARRIED

Straight Flying Leaves no Seasick Sensations, Rides as Steady as an Automobile

Monday was a gala day for Gulf lake and crowd watched Lieut. Salisbury as he circled about the lake with passengers carried in his seaplane "The Seagull."

Among those who sailed in the ethereal blue were John Cochran, young Billy McClenahan, Mr. and Mrs. Walter F. Wieland, Dr. Everett, Miss Ella Mitchell, Miss Drew, D. D. Schrader, Clyde L. Burnett and others.

Mr. Cochran and Billy McClenahan were passengers on one trip. Mr. Cochran said the hydroplane started its takeoff near Nashota lodge and rose as they approached I. U. White's place. They then flew south to Squaw Point, then circled to the other shore and on to Rocky Point and Hubert and back to the starting point. The view was superb. One saw the lakes and hills, roads and summer resorts, glimpses of Brainerd and the range country.

The hydroplane rides the air as steady as an automobile. The two passengers sit right back of the pilot. The aviator indulges in no stunt flying while carrying passengers and everything is done with the idea of safety uppermost.

The aviator who came through the auspices of the Northern Home Furnishing Co., will be at the lake all day Tuesday too and summer resorts and many Brainerd people will skin through the air with him.

Lieut. Salisbury is acquainted with every phase of the flying game, having served through the war as instructor and aviator, etc.

LEAGUE MAY HAVE FORTY MEMBERS

SOME OF THE ENEMY COUNTRIES MAY BE ADMITTED AT THE MEETING IN NOVEMBER.

COUNCIL'S EIGHT SESSIONS

At Every One of Them Some Important Movement Toward Closer World Co-operation and General Peace Was Set on Foot.

By JAMES P. HORNADAY.

Washington.—With the League of Nations coming to the front as the leading issue in this year's presidential campaign, interest in what the league is actually doing naturally increases. It has been in operation since the treaty of Versailles, commonly referred to as the treaty of peace with Germany, was ratified by the governments that participated in the making of the treaty, with the exception of the United States, and its acceptance by Germany. Forty-five governments were originally set down as possible members of the league. Up to this time 37 nations have entered the league. Of the 45 nations that were regarded as possible members only five have indicated an unwillingness to become members. These are the United States, Cuba, Haiti, Nicaragua and Honduras. The three others have thus far not shown any preference for or against.

Several nations that were not regarded as possible early members of the league when the Versailles treaty was signed have made formal application for membership and the outlook is that when the league assembly meets in Geneva November 15 the membership will be increased to 40 in any event. There is the possibility that some of the enemy countries, that is to say, countries that were arrayed against the allies and the United States in the world war, will be admitted to membership in the league at the November meeting, so the state department here understands.

What the Council Has Done.
The council of the league has held eight meetings since the league became a going concern. The latest of these was held at San Sebastian, Spain, and has just completed its work. Four of these meetings were held in London, two in Paris, one in Rome and one, as just noted, in San Sebastian. The reports of these meetings on file at the state department here show that at every meeting some movement of importance looking to closer world co-operation was set on foot. The more important actions by the council at these meetings are as follows:

There was set in motion the process through which a permanent court of international justice would be established; there was appointed a permanent transit commission and an advisory committee on naval, military and air questions; there was established a department for dealing with racial minorities and the question of mandatories; a plan for the registration of treaties was agreed on; an international financial congress which is to meet in Brussels September 24 was called; preliminary steps toward dealing with the question of the freedom of communications throughout the world and arranging for an international conference on this step next January were taken; arrangements were perfected whereby a permanent mixed commission will be appointed by the assembly and the council of the league to deal with the question of economic and financial blockades in case such blockades shall become necessary; a commission was created to give advice to the league as to disarmament.

Of course many other questions of minor importance were dealt with at these eight meetings of the council. The creation of a consultative body within the league regarding restrictions on the manufacture of arms and munitions by the various member nations has led to the false impression, so it is asserted, that some sort of a general army staff was created at the San Sebastian meeting of the council.

Advisory Commission's Duties.
The advisory commission, according to official reports, is not in any way to resemble the general army staff. It will be the business of this military and naval commission to study the armaments of the nations that hold membership in the league and from time to time report as to the possible reduction in armaments. The commission is not clothed with any authority at all.

The council up to this time, it seems, has proceeded cautiously in dealing with the question of blockades. In the action taken provision is made that the council shall recommend to members of the league what forces they shall severally contribute in the event the league should order an economic and financial blockade.

If the United States should enter the league and the question should arise of furnishing military or naval forces for the purpose of sustaining any action taken by the league, the course that would have to be pursued so far as this country is concerned, would be this: The representatives of the United States in the league would report to the president the action of the league and the president would, under the Constitution, it is pointed out, submit to congress the question as to whether the military or naval aid should be supplied.

The Rivals

By SAIDEE E. BALCOM

(St. Louis, Western Newspaper Union.)

When Abel Dayton, manufacturer, was influenced by his physician to spend a year at a health resort, he encouraged his employees to faithful service by distributing a very liberal bonus. He rather favored Pearce Mantell and Rodney Harper, distant relatives. It fairly took Mantell off his feet to have five hundred dollars in a lump. It set him dreaming. As to Harper, he felt that the nest egg of a fortune had come to him.

Pearce Mantell signaled his good fortune by equipping himself for a splurge. He had always longed to have an automobile and a sleek, smart auto salesman found no difficulty in prevailing upon Mantell to pay two hundred dollars down on a bright and shining car. Mantell anticipated his usual two weeks' vacation, indifferent to the odd hundreds in monthly installments that he would have to pay later on.

There was a road between Acton and the city where for over half a mile a slanting descent followed a tortuous course of sharp curves, with high bluffs at either side. Here one afternoon there were strung along as many as twenty cars. The cause of the stoppage could not be ascertained, as the curves shut out all view ahead.

Finally a motorist ventured to edge along the side of the road, to come upon Mantell, his machine at a standstill and he coolly wiping the dust from his auto. He had arranged to take Miriam Dale to the city to attend to some shopping, and wanted to have the auto look its very best to dazzle the senses of the prettiest girl in Acton.

Mantell chuckled serenely as he escaped the jeers and chidings of the automobilists he had kept in waiting and sped on to call for Miriam. That charming marvel of femininity he had been courting once a week for several months. Rodney Harper had done the same. Mantell felt very sanguine and superior with his new acquisition, the automobile. Then, too, he fancied himself generally a good deal of a "sport," while Harper was only a plodder. Mantell was employed in the offices of the Dayton establishment. Harper's duties were those of a buyer. His province was to purchase what supplies the factory required. Usually they were ordered per freight or express from various manufacturing centers, but when it was some light stuff, hurriedly needed, Tim Huggles an old employee, drove to the city in an ancient emporium wagon and gathered up what was required.

Upon the day when Mantell was aiming to impress pretty Miriam with a due sense of his importance, it chanced that some articles were very much needed for the next day's work at the factory. Tim was home ill, and Harper volunteered to act as his substitute. He slipped on old Tim's overall suit and was five miles on his way, when an imperious honk! honk! was followed by an automobile whizzing by him. It threw up a cloud of dust, but not so dense that it hid from Harper's eyes a smiling face and a gently waved hand. Miriam, seated beside Mantell, pleased and happy, was never forgetful of courtesy.

Mantell left Miriam at a store, arranging to call for her at five o'clock. He then drove up to the curb awaiting her appearance. She did not come, for he had mistaken another mercantile establishment for the point of meeting. When he ascertained his blunder he hastened to the right store to find it closed for the day. He was an easily rattled youth, drove about wildly, turned a corner in too much of a hurry, ran into another machine, wrecking it, and was haled up to the police station for reckless driving.

Poor Miriam was distressed when she had waited an hour beyond the appointed time and no Mantell appeared. Dusk was coming on and rain threatened. Finally she took the trolley line, which ran within five miles of Acton, burdened with bundles and timorously starting down the dark and lonely road homeward bound, a daunted maid as to courage, and angry at her cavalier's unaccountable desertion. Her feet were encased with mud, her clothing and bundles sopping wet. A vehicle came up behind her. "Why, Miriam!" spoke the heartsome, welcoming voice of Rodney Harper. "Alone! Here? Whatever has happened to Mantell?" and Miriam nestled close to Rodney under the canopy of the front seat, a thankful, relieved mortal, and forgot all her troubles.

"I've got to stop a minute at the old Beardsley cottage," spoke Rodney, as they entered the town. "It's vacant, you know, and I have bought it and am going to fix it up. By leaving some paint and hardware there now it will save another journey tomorrow."

"You won't live there all alone, will you, Rodney?" propounded artless Miriam.

She unconsciously invited an explanation, urged on by a realization on the part of Rodney of her bewitching prettiness. "Oh, no, Miriam," he responded—"not until I find a wife to keep it in order for me, and, Miriam, will you come and be that to me if I ask you?" Aird gloom, darkness, rain, the spontaneous proposal came, but as Miriam clung to his arm and hung her head, Rodney Harper fancied all the world was aglow with rainbows and sunshine.

DENMARK TO BE REPUBLIC?

According to Reports, the Little Country May Abandon the Monarchical Principle Soon.

News dispatches from Copenhagen state that there is a possibility of the establishment of a republic in Denmark, the little country that has been a monarchy since King Hensig ruled the country in 466 A. D.

Denmark is today a limited monarchy, ruled by King Christian, who divides his power with the two houses of parliament. During the war it suffered heavily in both its leading industries, dairying and the merchant marine. Many Danish ships were sunk by U-boats despite their neutrality, and the large herds of cattle that had supplied a large part of Europe's butter and cream were killed for food.

Denmark has a population of 2,500,000, a large part of whom live on small farms. Its area is 14,829 square miles, slightly larger than the state of Maryland. It is densely populated, with 165 people to the square mile on the mainland and 275 to the square mile on the many islands along the coast. Copenhagen, the capital and principal seaport, is situated on the island of Zealand. The island folk form the great element marine and the fisheries, while the farmers live on the fertile mainland.

Iceberg Was an Acrobat.

Not far from the spot where the Titanic was sunk by an iceberg in April, 1912, a fleet of 14 icebergs, some of them rising to more than 100 feet above the water line, were sighted by the steamship Maudslowi on a recent voyage.

Captain Fleming of the Maudslowi says that one of the icebergs gave a remarkable exhibition of tumbling as the vessel sailed past. It had apparently lost a good deal of its under water weight through the action of the warm sea water, and as they watched it the great iceberg suddenly flipped to starboard and rolled over with an immense splash. As it fell, a big section of the top broke away, with the result that the balance was altered and the berg tumbled back again. Then, just as it was righting itself, another section broke off, and it tumbled once more. The sight was a most unusual one.—Edinburgh Scotsman.

WHEN YOU LAY YOUR PAPER ASIDE

After you've read the news, have you gotten all the valuable information out of it? Not until you have read the advertisements.

Reading the advertisements should be just as much a part of your day as reading the news columns.

The advertisements in your favorite newspaper are a daily record of what your local merchants have laid in store to meet your needs and add to your comfort.

They tell you what the manufacturers of these goods, who are constantly striving to please the great American public, have done to add to your advantages and comforts. The news, while always interesting, may often concern you only in a general way.

The advertisements are almost certain to tell you something that may mean a great deal to your home life or your business and social welfare.
